≈ THE TIME A POST GETS TO EARN A PAUSE. I DESIGN FOR THAT WINDOW.

● ○ ○ NOTE — FROM RIVER

That moment of pause is what I design for — content people choose to stay with.

[One line on the result you bring — e.g. content that turns followers into customers.]

The person behind the pixels.

I'm River — a psychology grad who makes content. I studied why people pay attention; now I design, write and edit the posts, reels and art cards that earn it.

fun fact

I write poems too — first runner-up in poem-making (2025). Writing shapes how I design.

Mossline Matcha, a case study.

CLIENT // MOSSLINE MATCHA CO.

01 THE CLIENT

A small-batch matcha bar in Davao City selling ceremonial-grade lattes and tins to students and young professionals.

02 THE PROBLEM

Great product, forgettable feed: price-list posts, five fonts, no voice. People liked the drinks, not the page.

03 THE STRATEGY

Sell the ritual, not the drink — a calm “slow down, sip green” voice built on 3 pillars: ritual, origin, community.

04 THE EXECUTION

New brand kit, a 9-grid feed system, 12 posts, 4 reels and a “first sip” launch campaign with story polls.

TIMELINE

6 weeks

“Nobody follows a café for its menu. They follow it for how it makes their afternoon feel.”
